“REAL-LIFE CSI IN SANTA CLARA COUNTY”

A Presentation by Criminalist Cordelia Willis

TV shows like CSI have brought the world of forensic science to the American public. But how accurate is their portrayal? Here's your chance to find out what it's really like to be a forensic scientist. Criminalist Cordelia Willis has worked for the Santa Clara County Crime Laboratory for 22 years. Over the years, she has gone to crime scenes, tested drugs, processed items for fingerprints, analyzed items for biological fluids, worked with the DNA database, compared shoeprints and tire tracks, interpreted blood spatter, analyzed video and audio evidence, and processed cell phones.
